THE BENEFICE OF WESTFIELD AND GUESTLING

A letter from Rev Joy 18 April 2021

What a glorious day it has been with blue skies and sunshine although it still feels very cold out of the sun and inside our house. The fishermen tell me it's minus 10 degrees out at sea and is still too cold to put the cuttle pots down at the moment.

I expect like us you watched the funeral of the Duke of Edinburgh this afternoon. I found it far more moving than I expected and Clem and I shed a lot of tears between us. I had no idea that Prince Philip commissioned new music—the settings of the Jubilate by Benjamin Britten and Psalm 104 by William Lovelady were extraordinary. The quartet of 3 Lay Clerks from St George's and a guest soprano sang so well that their voices seemed to multiply into a much larger choir. With the reading from Ecclesiasticus they provided a rich paean of praise to God's creation which the Duke did so much to protect and conserve.

The hymn 'Eternal Father strong to save' always brings a lump to my throat and I loved the phrase in one of the prayers from Psalm 107 asking God to "grant unto him the assurance of thine ancient promise that thou wilt ever be with those who go down to the sea in ships and occupy their business in great waters."

The sight of the Queen sitting on her own, her head bowed, her face masked, was almost unbearable. I felt the weight of all the funerals I had taken since lockdown began last year with the mourners isolated and the air so thick and heavy with the feelings of loss that it made it hard to breathe. I do hope that today's funeral made that pain easier to bear knowing that it is a pain shared by so many including the nation's Royal family. I hope too that people found comfort in the words of the prayer we heard today:

ALMIGHTY God, Father of all mercies and giver of all comfort: Deal graciously, we pray thee, with those who mourn; that casting every care on thee they may know the consolation of thy love; through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

This comes with my love and prayers as always, Joy

SAINTS OF ENGLAND

ST ALPHAGE

Martyred 1012
Feast Day 19 April

Alphage lived in a dark period of English history. As Bishop of Winchester in 994 he was sent as an emissary to the Danes, whose king he confirmed as a Christian. The Danes promised never to attack England again, but ten years later they returned, laying siege to Canterbury where Alphage was now Archbishop.

The city was sacked, the cathedral was burnt down, and the Archbishop was taken as a prisoner to Greenwich. Alphage refused to be ransomed as the people were poor, so the Danes pelted him with ox bones and drinking horns. One of the soldiers, a Christian, put the Archbishop out of his misery with an axe. Anselm, a later Archbishop, declared Alphage a martyr, though "he did not die for any point of Christian belief, yet he died for Christian justice and charity". Alphage's body was enshrined north of the High Altar in Canterbury Cathedral.

The illustration is a detail from a stained glass window in Canterbury Cathedral showing St Alphage being carried off by the Vikings.

Almighty Father,
who in your great mercy gladdened the disciples
with the sight of the risen Lord:

God of love,
as we stand with Jesus,
help us to receive Jesus' peace in our hearts,
putting aside any fear that we have in believing.
Help us to be valuable witnesses
as you continue your work on earth through us.
This we ask in the power of the Holy Spirit.

Alleluia.

Amen.

The Duke of Argyll's Teaplant (Lycium Barbarum)

My father and I first discovered and identified this on 28th July 1968 on the West Hill in Hastings. (I know this because it's written in my Oxford Book of Wildflowers that I was given on my 10th birthday! Clem and I can confirm there is still a tall and untidy hedge of it where the West Hill meets Exmouth Place. It has a small purple flower and orangey-red berries. These are now better known as Goji berries and are recommended as being loaded with important nutrients and antioxidants.

Plus, they may support immune function and healthy vision.

I wrote about us finding a couple of berries left on the shrub last year. We planted them up and here they are now doing really well. It's certainly a plant of character as you can see from the seedlings and the fact they all grow at different rates. We hope to have our first harvest of Goji berries in about two years time.

Archibald Campbell, 3rd Duke of Argyll who introduced it to this country from China in the 1730s, got a bit confused by it's labelling. It was never a tea plant but a type of boxthorn.
